The romance of Paris was the subject of ADAM GOPNIK'S Paris to the Moon — a collection of essays about the five years he spent living in The City of Light with his wife and young son. The book also inspired this pretty feature, aptly photographed at Toronto's Parisian-inspired Colette Grand Café.

“THERE ARE TWO GENERAL THEMES TO OUR SHOOT.
 The French/Parisian flavour was woven into many of the details, along with accents based on a celestial theme including the moon and stars, reflected in the title of the book.”
